this book gives a concise presentation of the mathematical foundations of game theory with an emphasis on strategic analysis linked to information and dynamics it is largely self contained with all of the key tools and concepts defined in the text combining the basics of game theory such as value existence theorems in zero sum games and equilibrium existence theorems for non zero sum games with a selection of important and more recent topics such as the equilibrium manifold and learning dynamics the book quickly takes the reader close to the state of the art applications to economics biology and learning are included and the exercises which often contain noteworthy results provide an important complement to the text based on lectures given in paris over several years this textbook will be useful for rigorous up to date courses on the subject apart from an interest in strategic thinking and a taste for mathematical formalism the only prerequisite for reading this book is concerned with situations in which several persons reach decisions independently and the final consequence depends potentially upon each of the decisions taken such situations may be described formally by an extensive form game a mathematical object which specifies the order in which decisions are to be taken the information available to the decision makers at each point in time and the consequence that results for each possible combination of decisions a necessary requirement for rational behavior in such games is that each decision maker should reach a decision that is optimal given his preferences over his own decisions this requirement is far from sufficient however since every decision maker should in addition base his preferences upon the conjecture that his opponents will act optimally as well it is this principle that distinguishes noncooperative game theory from one person decision theory the main purpose of rationality in extensive form games is to discuss different formalizations of this principle in extensive form games such as backward induction nash equilibrium forward induction and rationalizability under the assumption that the decision makers preferences are given by subjective expected utility functions the various formalizations of rationality criteria are illustrated by examples and the relationships among the different criteria are explored
